

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus and method for using a disposable liner for cooking in a cooking vessel such as a dutch oven. The disposable liner includes a liner and one or more handles at an upper portion of the liner. The liner includes a bottom wall and an upstanding side wall. The one or more handles are made to extend from the upper portion of the liner, wherein the handles are movable. With this arrangement, the disposable liner is configured and shaped to fit in a cooking vessel, where the handles are movable downward so that a cooking vessel's lid may sit flat thereon without interference from the handles.
